Q: MongoDB get_one with Regex search I'm trying to use the search method to find a field and return a match. The problem is that if I try to run it in the shell I get an error. `db.col.find({'$regex': {'txt: /^An idea/}}).limit(1)` error: exception: `db.col.find({'$regex': {'txt: /^An idea/}}).limit(1)` returned error: error: { "$err" : "invalid operation: unknown $field query option", "code" : 16527 } I've tried escaping the $ by wrapping in brackets, and with slash etc. I can run `db.col.find({'$regex': {'txt:/^An idea/}}).limit(1)` with no problems, but it returns all results. I'd like it to return the first result. How can I do that? A: You could also use the `limit()` function on the cursor as shown here: I'm not sure if there is a special syntax in the Mongo shell to make this easier (maybe `$limit?`); the code would be something like this: `var cursor = db.`
